A NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR

At its core, Jekyll & Hyde is a story about the duality of man - the battle between good and evil that exists within all of us. My vision for this production is to explore the psychological and emotional depth of these characters, emphasizing the tension between control and chaos, morality and desire. The world we create must reflect both the rigid constraints of Victorian society and the dark, seductive power of Hyde.

This is a story of passion, obsession, and the terrifying power of the human mind. Our job is to bring the audience into Jekyll's world, making them feel his ambition, his suffering, and ultimately, his downfall. If we do our jobs right, they will leave questioning their own inner duality-the thin line between light and darkness that exists in all of us.

Let's embrace the madness.

Michael Serrecchia,
Jekyll & Hyde Director
